

Help defend workers' rights by joining a NS Federation of Labour Committee

Do you want to become a more vocal advocate for workers' rights in Nova Scotia? As an NSTU member you can apply to serve on one of several important committees hosted by the Nova Scotia Federation of Labour (NSFL).

Having strong, passionate teachers participate on these committees only serves to strengthen the reputation of the NSTU within the labour movement.

Committees include: Human Rights/Anti-Racism, Women's Rights, Education, Occupational Health and Safety, Political Action and more. If you are interested in applying, or for more information, please visit <https://www.nstu.ca/the-nstu/structure/committees/>.

All appointments are for a period of two years. All active and reserve members are eligible to apply. The NSTU will select individuals for consideration but final appointments are made by the NSFL.

The deadline for applications is Friday, November 26, 2021 at 4:30 p.m. If you have any questions or concerns please email committees@nstu.ca
